theme —

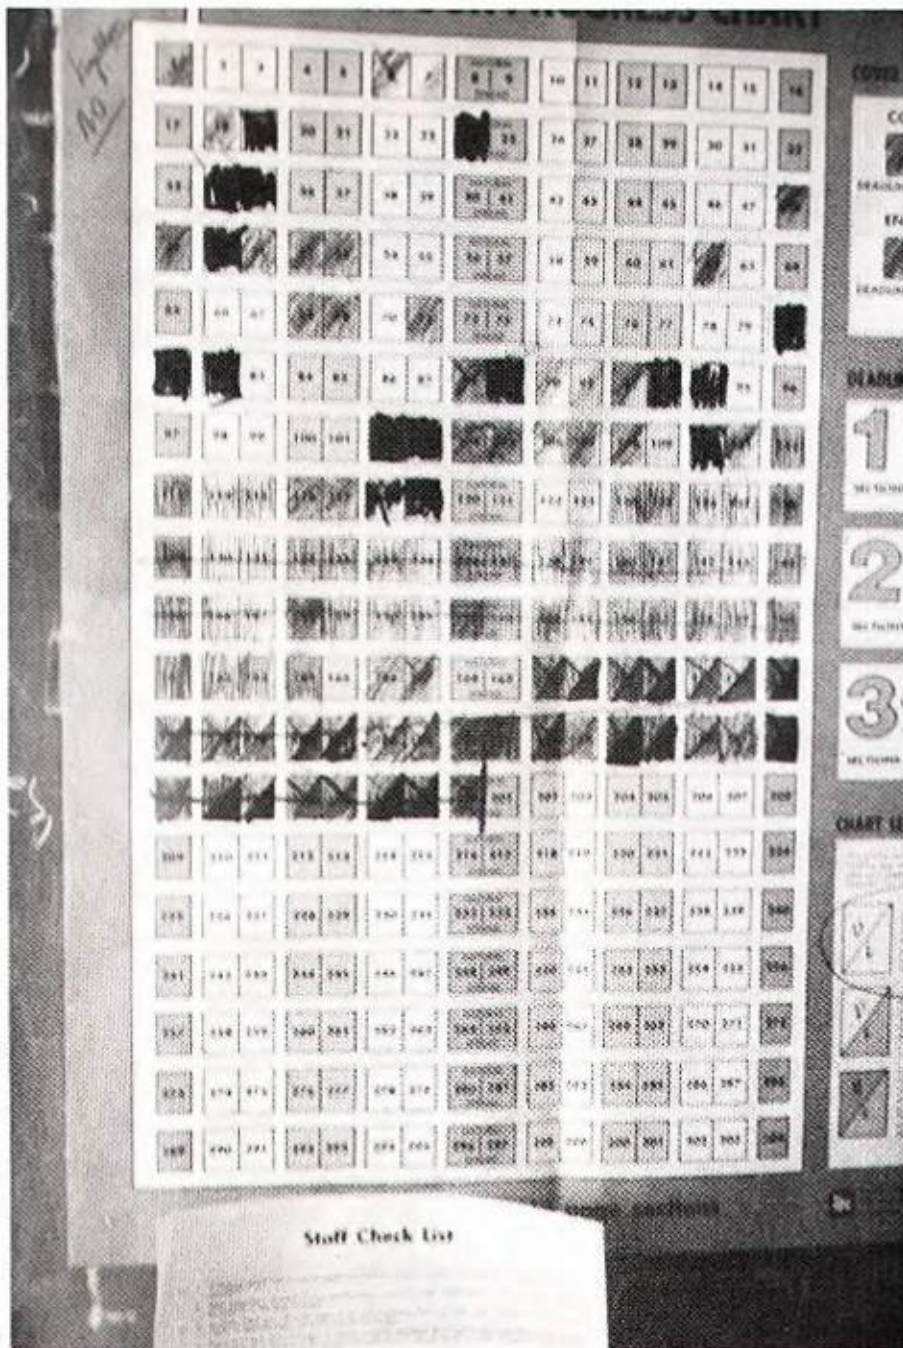

new horizons

Manifestations of a new horizon are forever part of nature and, necessarily, of the world of man. Our aim is to depict the potential, the natural resources, the inherent capabilities of every individual and group to bring about progress and change. The ever-enlarging scope of activities in our school, in the nation, and in the world culminates essentially in increased human awareness, the goal of all forms of education. Each club activity, each athletic success, each scholastic effort will represent an individual achievement in the world, a beginning of a new horizon.

As a new horizon in this year's book, we have endeavored to portray the many facets of school life, essentially through photography, specifically through dividers, candid, and a section entitled "pictorial essay." The Totem is intended as a permanent record of students, faculty, administration, activities, and the general school atmosphere. It is in this presentation that we immortalize our 1970-1971 school year.

HORIZONS

Gateways to academia

dedication:

Mr. Theodore S. Johnson

Fall, winter, and spring have found Mr. Theodore S. Johnson, teacher, sub-master, assistant principal, a veritable "man of all seasons" in his friendly main floor office, counseling young people with personal and scholastic problems. A man of understanding, with compassion for us in our difficulties, and elation for us in our triumphs, Mr. Johnson has guided P.H.S. students for more than two decades since coming from our sister school, Deering.

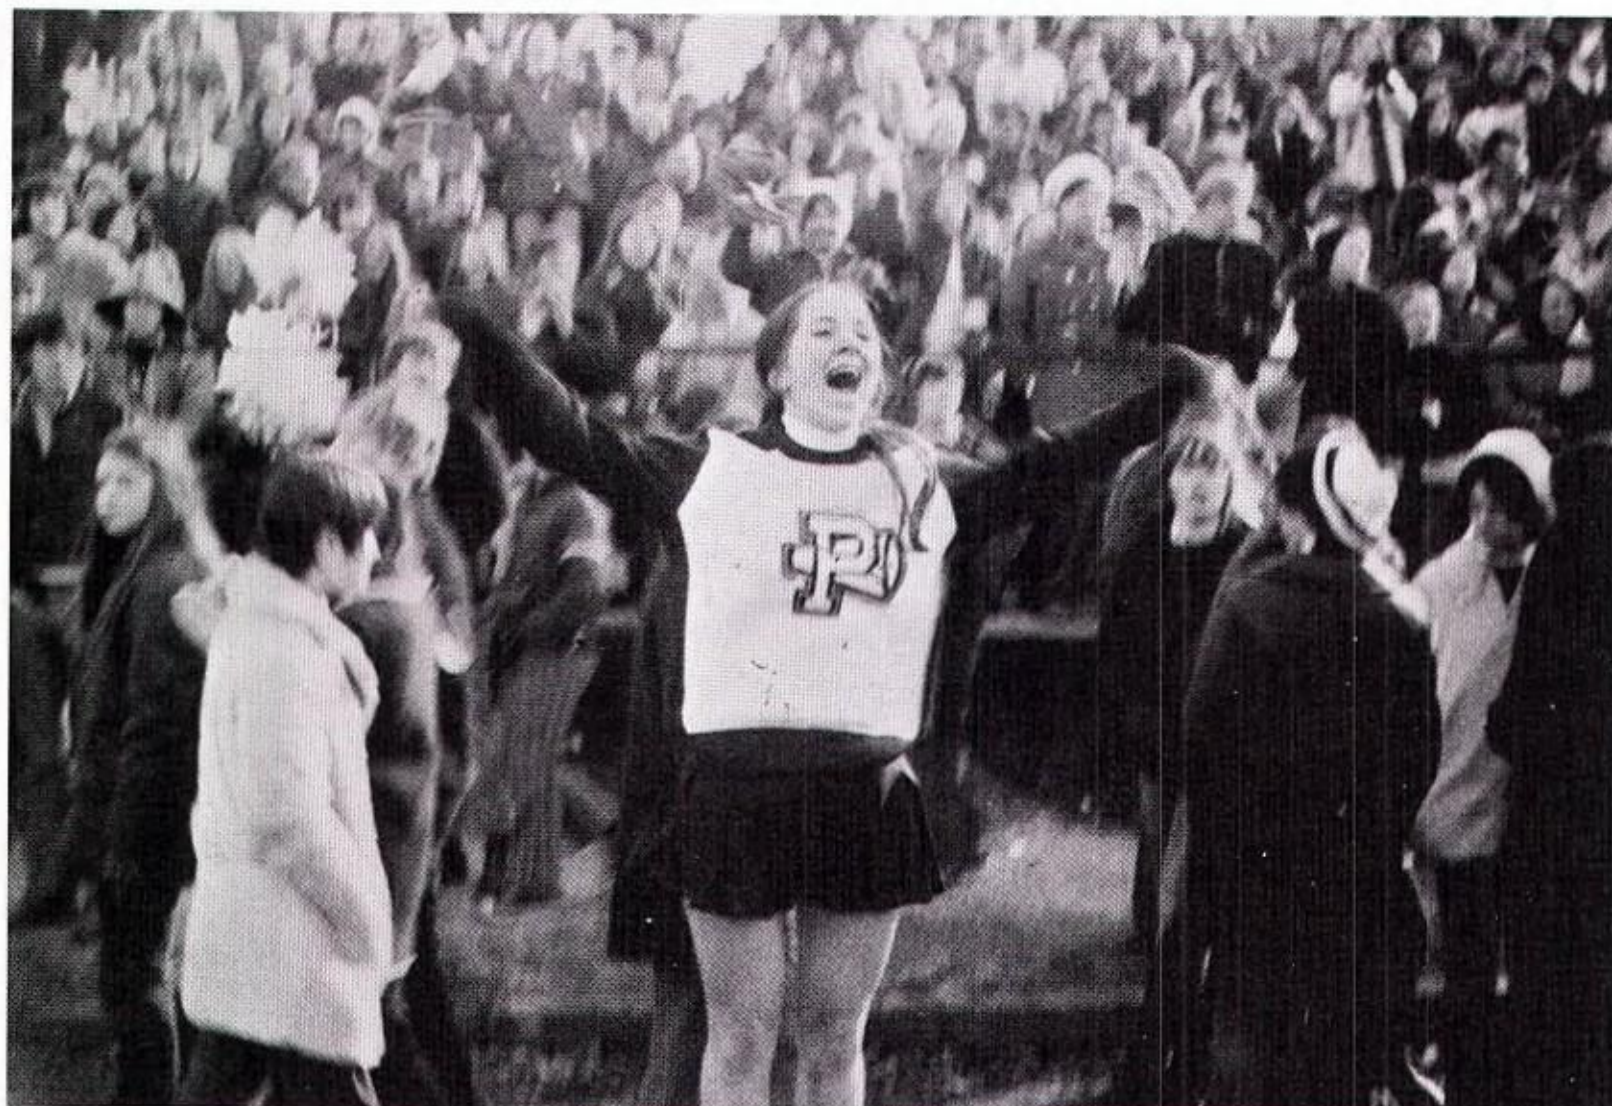

Forever enlarging his professional horizons and magnificently sharing his abilities, Mr. Johnson, who retires this year, has also contributed greatly to the life of the community. He is currently a trustee of the Portland Community Concert Association, the Falmouth Library, and the Maine Home for Boys. He is corporator of the Maine Savings Bank, a past president of the Portland Players, and a voting delegate of the College Entrance Examination Board.

The Totem staff dedicates this 1971 yearbook in hopes of conveying the affection and esteem that the students, faculty, and community feel for this distinguished educator. We extend best wishes to him and Mrs. Johnson for happiness in the days ahead, which include foreign travel, sanctuary when desired in their mountain hideaway, and further study at his alma mater, Dartmouth.

school life

School life is the combination of the classes, activities of organizations, and general atmosphere. All these contribute to the total educational experience, the gateway to future horizons.

Crescendos Of Excitement . . .

The cry of "Give me a P!" echoed across the field. This year, seventeen enthusiastic girls dressed in blue and white uniforms had roles as cheerleaders. Under the direction of Mrs. Jan Brigham, the girls spiritedly represented Portland High School at football games, cross-country meets, basketball games, track meets, and other athletic contests.

The girls rounded out the year by sponsoring food sales, helping sell sports cushions, and participating in sports rallies. One will always remember "crescendos" of excitement encouraged by the cheerleaders of P.H.S.

The cheerleaders crowned for the Turkey Day game Joanne Yarnold and Mark Hutchins as Miss and Mr. Portland.

Library Approaching University Level

The P.H.S. library is slowly becoming comparable to that of a university. At the year's opening, the library was expanded not only in size but also in volumes and equipment. Room 206 is now part of a study area with individual study stalls. A convenient reference office for librarians, Mrs. Eleanor Bergen, Mrs. Dorothy Kane, and Mrs. Barbara Connellan, was installed at the opposite end. Newly instituted microfilm readers aided students in quick reference while also saving storage space. A disc collection was in progress during the year.

The Library Club is an organization of over fifty students — of both sexes. Members, for all seven class periods of the day, assisted the librarians in the chores of registering students and signing books in and out and collecting library fees.

Library aide, Joan Davis, stamps out a biography to be used for a junior term paper.

Computer

In its second year of operation, Bowdoin's PDP-10 Computer tie-in with Portland High School provided valuable experience for students interested in computer concepts.

Those students who have attained a workable knowledge of computer processes and language served as computer monitors, providing instructional assistance for other students. With the aid of Mr. Raymond Allen, the monitors utilized their own programming skills to instruct other students in the preparation and testing of computer programs. The computer at Bowdoin College, which handles both Basic and Fortran programs, offers in addition an array of teaching programs prepared by the staff of the computer center.

The Pi-Cone Math League met once each month for competitive testing between schools within the state. Tests were administered in five categories, and accuracy under pressure was essential for team success. March's Category V. test is displayed above. This successful four-man varsity unit, consisting of Gail Berson, Ken Farber, Owen Knox, and David Emmons, swept New England tournaments.

"As first negative speaker in today's debate, I am going to do basically two things . . ." Debate jargon became second nature to members of the 1970-71 squad. Discussing federal pollution control, the team was actively engaged in competition from September through April. By mid-year, the debaters had won over eighteen award trophies.

The novice team worked diligently to master speaking ability and the art of persuasion. The team consistently succeeded in its competition in every tournament. Enthusiasm and perseverance earned the novices respect from their New England peers.

Gail Berson and Ken Farber, a top varsity team, traveled throughout New England, to Pittsburgh, and to Washington, D.C., for national tournaments. The year's highlight was the Miami Beach High School National Debate Tournament, where Gail and Ken lost only in the final rounds to the eventual champions.

Owen Knox and David Emmons completed the successful varsity unit.

Motivated students, coached by Mr. Alan S. Palais, once again proved their abilities in debate at PHS. "... We therefore ask for negative concurrence."

The Portland High School Cadet Program endeavors to contribute to the development of good citizens through the medium of military training. The Cadets drilled three mornings a week in the Boys' gym before school. This involved practice in military drills including close order drill, manual of arms, the giving of commands, color guard, and other basic military subjects. During the year, Cadets participated in parades, athletic events, assemblies, graduation as color guard; as ushers, auditorium assistants; and at other school functions. This training is especially valuable for those planning to enter the military service.

On-field maneuver during halftime.

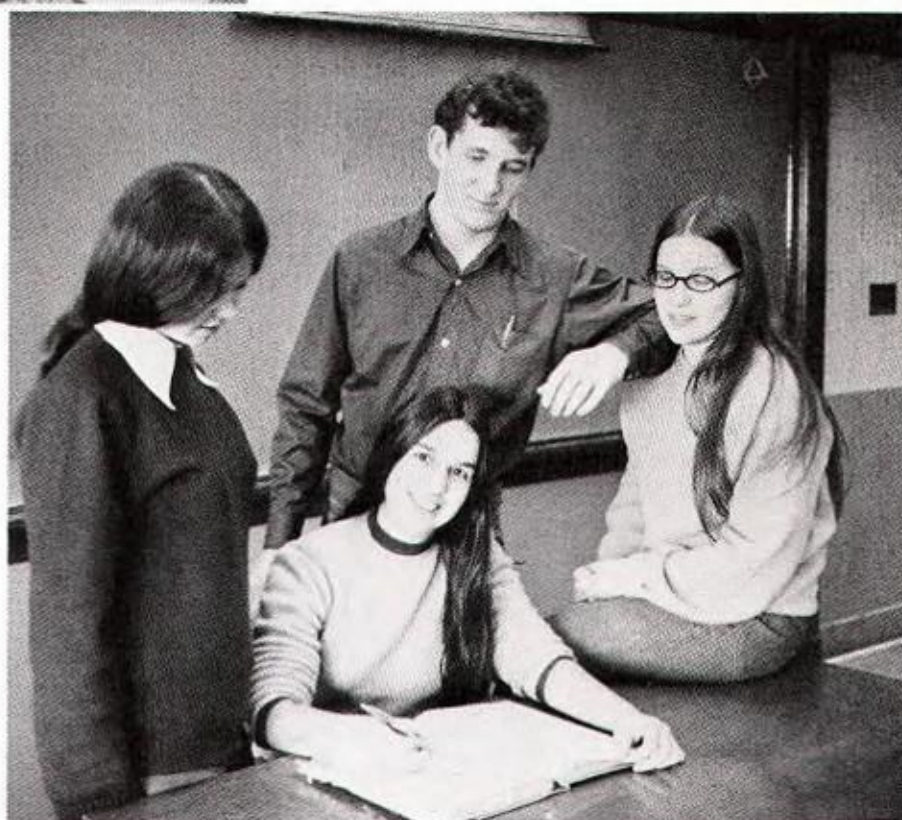

This year the P.H.S. majorettes played an important role in the sparking of school spirit. Stepping to the beat of the PHS band, the majorettes performed at football games, rallies, and parades. Headed by Loretta Chase, with Joan Davis and SuSu Troiano as sub-heads, the girls also participated in all band projects and conducted their own food sales to raise money. A group of girls also taught baton techniques to students at Adams school on Saturdays.

This year's Pre-Med Club attained their horizons in the way of helping others, through preparation for future medical careers and direct participation in service projects. In February the club put on a Valentine party for the Pineland School students. Throughout the year the club toured the Osteopathic Hospital, the Boston Children's Hospital, the Hartford Peabody Museum, and witnessed an autopsy. Under the leadership of advisor, Mr. Gabriel Walker, the group held informal discussions, seminars, and panel programs among themselves and with professional mentors.

Band Aids Community

Under the guidance of Mr. Thomas Bucci, director, the PHS band again lived up to its reputation as one of Maine's outstanding musical organizations. Notable among the year's performances were the football game half time maneuvers, Alumni concert, and the Memorial Day, Veteran's Day and Fire Prevention-Sesquicentennial parades. In addition, the pep band played at Jack Junior High School rallies, a small group played Christmas carols at City Hall, and the group held its annual exchange concert with North Smithfield, Rhode Island.

Funds for the year came from several projects, including a Conora fried clam supper, a sale of concert boosters, and a tag day. Also the band members prepared food sales and did work for the Telephone Company.

Choristers Explore Harmony, Melody

Striving to perfect their voices in melodic lines, the sopranos, altos, tenors, and basses of the PHS chorus worked diligently through the year during period H, culminating their activities with a first-place in the Bath chorus festivities. Pitch, resonance, rhythm, and counterpoint became instructive terms in their efforts to achieve tonality, with skill in sight-reading as a necessary requisite. Under the direction of Alexis Cote, the chorus, with Jay Adams as accompanist, combined the aesthetics with the practical in developing their musical skills. As a daily class this activity contributes points toward graduation and offers, unlike standard courses, opportunities for students to express talent in the field of fine arts.

Mr. Alexis Cote directs a small group of singers in correct song phrasing.

Future Teachers Expand Knowledge

FTA OFFICERS: Sue Lawler, sec.; Maureen Donahue, v.-pres.; Anne Payne, pres.; and Bonnie Clark, treas.

The Future Teachers of America provided a new horizon for those interested in the field of education. This year's President Anne Payne, assisted by Maureen Donahue, v.-pres.; Sue Lawler, secretary; and Bonnie Clark, treasurer; met each Thursday night with the club to discuss techniques of teaching and the prospects of future teaching positions. The girls expanded their knowledge in this area of preparation for educational services.

From tutoring in Model Cities to collecting for charities, the girls who belong to Keyettes are dedicated to helping others. In addition to monthly food sales, they provided Thanksgiving baskets for the needy, performed puppet shows for school and hospitals, and donated to the Pineland Pool Project and Bruce Roberts Christmas fund. Their major money making project was a night of 1930 movies with proceeds contributed to the American Indian Fund.

This year Keyettes organized the first Maine District Convention, held in March. Clubs of Maine sent delegates to elect district officers prior to the International Convention. Many Keyettes share fond memories of April, 1971, International Convention in Virginia.

Inter-clubs with other local Keyette and Key Clubs, the annual Christmas Fair, and the calendar sale mark memorable Keyette events, while maintaining a high degree of service to the community.

A great asset to community service, the members worked diligently for the Pineland Pool Project (in conjunction with the P.H.S. Key Club) and the March of Dimes drive. Dedicated to helping both the elderly and the young, the entire membership directed Christmas programs for the children at the Mercy Hospital and for patients at the City Hospital in Portland.

P.H.S. Key Club, Chairman Club

In conjunction with its goal of community service, the Key Club participated in the Heart Fund, ALSAC, UNICEF, Muscular Dystrophy, and March of Dimes drives. They timed at debates and ushered at games, the fight, an ice show, and community concerts. For money-making projects, the Key Club held a cushion sale; participated in a hun-

Much planning, writing, accuracy, and patience were essentials of all Totem editorial workers; often until late in the afternoon, the editors and assistants worked diligently. It was a tiring but extremely rewarding activity for all who worked from September through late April.

The business staff were charged with financing the book. Books had to be sold, money collected for outstanding debts, boosters recorded, and senior picture fees obtained. This system is extensive and certainly necessary for every yearbook.

Harriers Clinch State Title

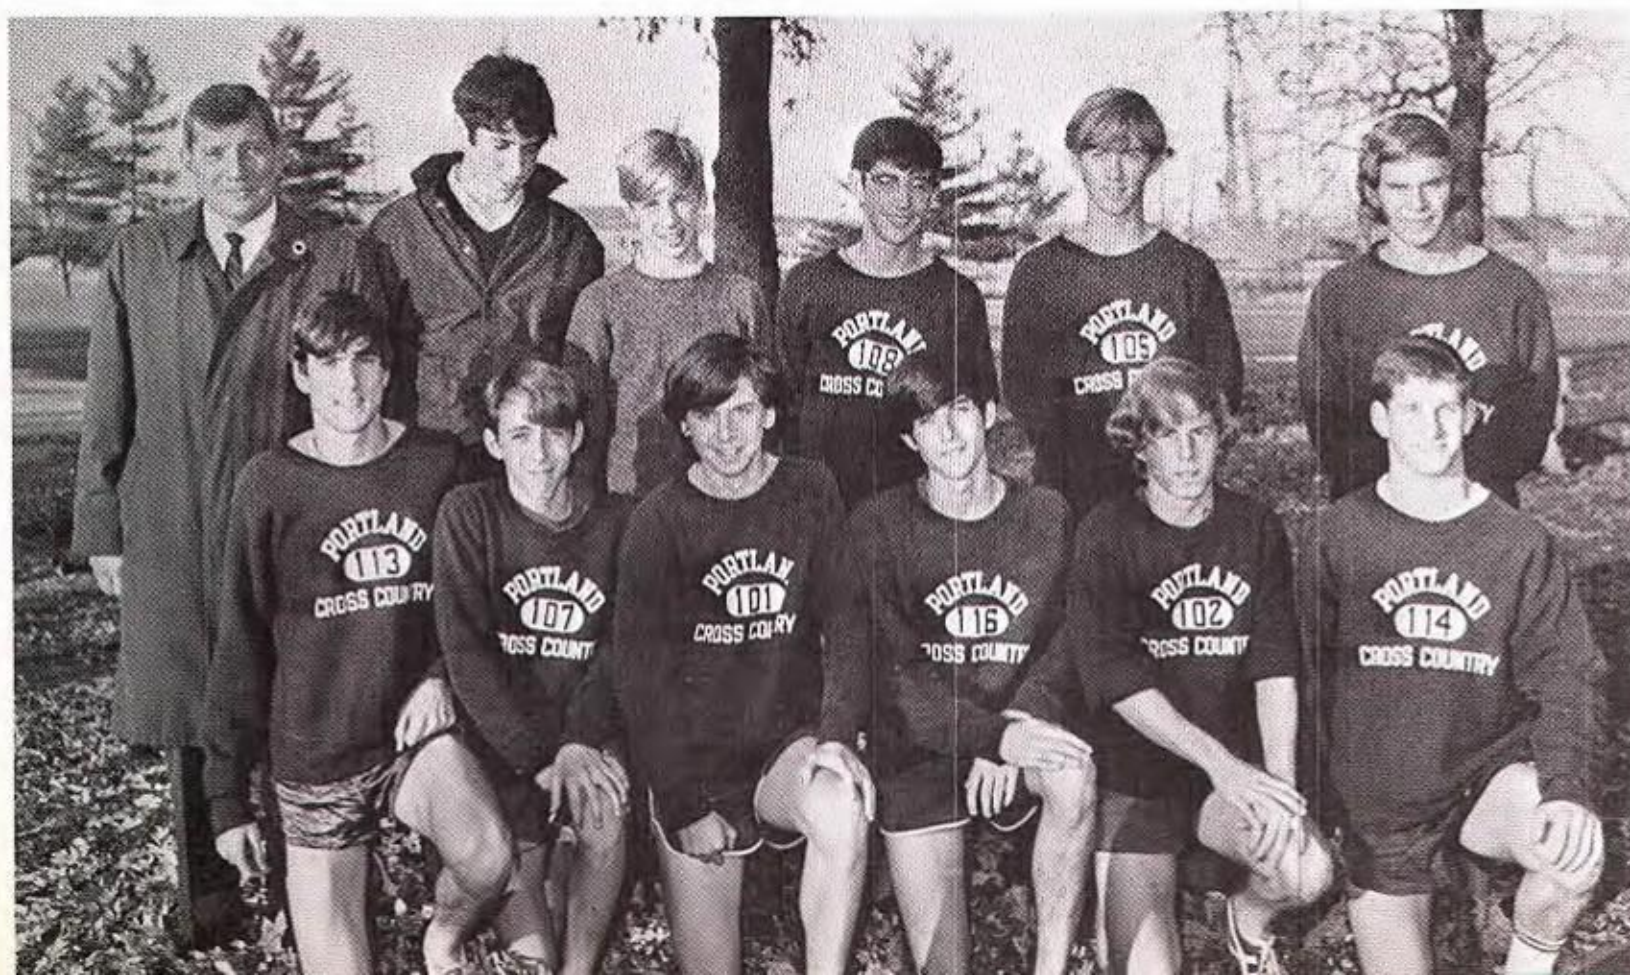

Coach Ed Bogdanovich's harriers finished in a flourish by winning the State Title, with captain Frank Coyne leading this year's "never say die" club to the top. While the varsity's overall record was fourteen wins, two losses, the Junior varsity was undefeated.

Next year's co-captain elect, Jim Regan, was the team pacesetter, rarely finishing further back than second, and tying distance runner Ken Flander's time. Frank Coyne was always right up with Regan. Coyne and Regan hold the new Portland course record, a brisk twelve minutes and forty-seven seconds. Danny Paul, co-captain elect, was Portland's number three man. Danny was also the most consistent scorer. Jimmy Langella, the sophomore surprise, was easily the best sophomore in the area. Paul Norton rounded out the top five with his best showing in the state meet.

Also contributing significantly to the team were Don Ratliff, Steve Frost, Steve Brewster, Dennis Brown, Rick Thurston, John Adams, Dave Knapp, and Al Wilcox. Managing this year's state champions were Marty Barry and Bob Hannigan.

Bulldogs Have Rebuilding Year

The persistent gridders ignored losses and injuries during the 1970 season, playing on team spirit and determination. The Bulldogs ended their two game losing streak by defeating the Biddeford Tigers 21-14, Biddeford's only regular season loss. The next two games proved to be bitter tests for the Blue, losing to Thornton Academy and Deering.

The following game saw Portland at full strength for the first time as the Bulldogs downed Cheverus. Portland's strength continued to show for the next two games as they defeated Sanford and Westbrook. Co-captain Murphy was injured for the third time during the Westbrook clash. Previous injuries during the season saw co-captain Best, Marty O'Brien, Tom George (selected for All-State as offensive end), and Bob Pompeo missing important games.

The Bulldogs have come through a rebuilding season for Robert Graff, head coach. Assistant to Mr. Graff were Phillip Jones, backfield; Dana Weeks, line; and David Wallace, junior varsity coach, who is leaving football after this year.

Basketballers Make '71 Tourney

This year the blue basketeteers were the greenest, shortest, and youngest team in Western LL play. They were ranked at the bottom of the standings with tournament chances at zero. Coach John McGuire and his team, however, were not dismayed by the odds, and after a rough season, the under-rated Bulldogs made the tournament in position eight.

The Christmas Tournament saw the Bulldogs upset Deering and Cheverus while being defeated by the South Portland Riots. Portland later defeated Deering again on an unbelievable 60 foot basket by Rick Anderson as the final gun sounded. Other outstanding performances were turned in by Larry Kolkhorst, voted most valuable player; Don Bancroft; Marty O'Brion; and Wally Blowers. Coach John McGuire was aided by asst. coaches Robert Brewer and Alan S. Palais.

Trackmen Conference Champions

The spirit which has carried P.H.S. to so many victories again carried the fighting Bulldogs to a League Championship. After beating South Portland, the Portland trackmen entered the final meet between the two undefeated teams, Portland and Deering. Through the relays Portland was down by five but the loyal Bulldogs carried two relays to tie the meet. The third relay was disqualified on a controversial foul. The relay victories gave the Blue the tie and the championship on a scheduling mistake.

This year's co-captains were John Davis, state high-hurdle champion; Frank Coyne, Southwestern 1,000 winner; Steve DiBiase, valuable 600 man; and Tom George, champion high-jumper. Other consistent scorers were John Cavallaro, Jim Regan, Dick Colluci, John Cogswell, Pat Young, and Claude Gaudet.

Mr. Edward Bogdanovich and Mr. Armand Gouzie coached the Blue and White, inspiring the team to victory. With the combination of the 1970-1971 track season, Coach Bogdanovich now holds twelve local and state championships in P.H.S. track.

Swimmers — Respected Opponents

"All quiet for the start, please. Swimmers, take your marks." This was a familiar sound to the sixteen boys who made up this year's PHS swimming team.

Although lack of depth prevented the Bulldogs from retaining their state championship, Coach Harold Paulson did an excellent job inspiring the boys to a second place in the Class A League. Outstanding individual performers helped make Portland a feared and respected opponent, with Bob Daigle and Rusty Soule setting numerous records throughout the year. Mike Thornton, John Wescott, Ed Dox, Ralph Troiano and Vinny Thomas also contributed to the team performance. Norman Novick, Ray Charlesworth, and Eric Newcomb showed great improvement throughout the year.

Although the season was a disappointment to the team, Captain Bob Daigle summed up the feelings of the team by saying, "We won in every respect but points."

Rusty Soule practices precise form which won him the New England record in the 100 yard butterfly.

The athletic program at P.H.S. combines practical instruction with an all important competitive spirit. Regarded by some as the focal point of high school activities, sports, both extra-school and intramural, capture the interests of students and teachers alike. As part of our nation's character, evidenced by successive national television coverage of baseball, football, basketball, and the Olympics program, sports contribute essentially to individual, local, and international horizons.

Girls Develop Stickwork Skills

Less successful in the 1970 season than they had wished to be, the girls' field hockey team nevertheless won points in other areas, perhaps more important than goals. Many of the girls developed their stickwork skills and a fine style essential to an exciting and exhilarating hockey game. Although competition was high and there were few wins, the girls managed to keep their opponents' scores low and their team spirits high. Jean Bennett has been elected captain for the hopefully successful 1971 season.

Preparing students to become integral parts of our ever-growing and progressive community are the faculty and the curriculum of Portland High. Different courses and systems are considered each year with new ideas and bold dynamics, presenting a composite picture of the school — the curricula.

The office of the principal at P.H.S. is always open to students who wish advice from or a consultation with Mr. Reiche. Here, Mary Napolitano questions Mr. Reiche on text book series.

Personal Rapport Key To Success

A man with administrative skill and versatile talents, Principal Howard C. Reiche has through his experience and capabilities brought statewide and regional renown to Portland High. Famous for his personal rapport with parents, teachers, and students, Mr. Reiche takes an interest in all school affairs in addition to his responsibilities as head administrator of the high school. He and his wife receive invitations, readily accepted, to chaperone all extra-school activities and show at sports events when time permits.

Among Mr. Reiche's outside interests are a mineral collection from all parts of the United States, which is displayed in his memento-filled office, and skiing on weekends and vacations. His talent at the piano is well known. As a counselor to all, Mr. Reiche brings efficiency and dependability to the Portland High School administration.

Mr. Theodore S. Johnson outlines schedule revision to Valerie Vance.

Principals Coordinate Schedule

Between classes, at lunchtime, and after school, it is a common occurrence to meet Mr. Theodore S. Johnson or Mr. C. Walter Hansen checking schedules, advising teachers, and consulting with students. Fulfilling their jobs as assistant principals, these two men always act responsibly and conscientiously in keeping the school program functional and accessible at all times. Devotion and dedication result in the decorous atmosphere found at P.H.S. Deserved praise should go to Mr. Johnson and to Mr. Hansen for maintaining the fine reputation which Portland High School has held through the past years.

Mr. C. Walter Hansen and Jeanne Benner discuss the relationship of education and learning.

Office Staff Keeps Order

Efficiency is the key to a smoothly run organization. This policy is maintained in the Portland High School office by the office staff, who competently handles the tremendous amount of clerical work. The secretaries who work to overcome the daily problems in scheduling and who keep the daily work under control include Miss Mary Conroy, Mrs. Iola Bloomer, Mrs. Barbara Frisbee, and Mrs. Helen Higgins.

Counselors Aid In Decisions For Future

Did anyone have a problem — personal or educational? P.H.S. students were often seen waiting in line at the busy guidance office. Five understanding counselors assisted by two friendly secretaries, Mrs. Anne Carson and Mrs. Frances Rogers, were always willing to advise pupils on schedules, colleges, or jobs.

All testing was supervised carefully by the director of the Guidance Department, Mr. John Conroy, who counseled seniors in the general business, and vocational courses. Sophomore and junior non-college boys were advised by Mr. John Lee. Mrs. Geraldine Day, Mrs. Catherine Donahue, and Mrs. Mary Jane Stone helped all college-bound students. Counselors interviewed pupils to assist them in selecting courses and subjects and in setting future goals.

Catalogues, handbooks, and pamphlets were constantly available for perusal. Representatives from colleges, business, and vocational schools interviewed those interested in further education as a part of the extensive guidance program offered at Portland High.

Mrs. Anne B. Carson, guidance secretary, examines new files of student schedules.

Office Aides

Invaluable to the effectiveness of the discipline at Portland High are Mr. C. Walter Hansen's office aides. Passing out notices, taking names, and running errands are among the many services these students perform during free time. Here, checking assignments with Mr. Hansen are three of his aides, Marie DeRice, Sue Salamone, and Patty Burke.

Valuable Additions

With colleges, vocational and business schools, and employment major fields of importance for students, the guidance office aides are great assets and additions to a staff of seven. In addition to cataloguing and sending interview notices, these girls assist the guidance counselors. Shown here are Mrs. F. Rogers, seated, and P. Burke, E. Schoolcraft, S. Pollard, D. Lawler, C. Walsh, department chairman; Mrs. Frances Rogers, Mrs. Catherine Ridge, Mrs. Dorothy LaRoche, Miss Barbara Johnson, Mrs. Emily M. Makrides.

The P.H.S. English Department tries not only to assure success in written and spoken English but also to arrange events to correlate with the curriculum. In the fall juniors and seniors attended the movie, Hamlet, at a local theatre. During spring vacation, a group of students enjoyed an educational and enjoyable ten day tour to London, England. Stratford-on-Avon, Westminster Abbey, and other spots of special literary interest were highlights of the trip chaperoned by Mr. Ronald Pierson.

This year an innovative method of media teaching was included in the department. The course, taught by Mr. Dale Doucette, a new member of the faculty, stressed contractual teaching. A variety of equipment was available for students, who were involved in such exciting activities as the art of making movies.

Mrs. Makrides interprets Hamlet's soliloquy.

English, Background To Diverse Studies

Foreign Tours Highlight Program

Mr. Alan Palais corrects Spanish verb conjugation.

At a time when a "communication gap" has supposedly polarized much of the nation, students at P.H.S. are offered the chance to bridge the gap in at least one way by learning a foreign language.

Highlights of this year's academic program, under the chairmanship of Miss Theresa E. Johnson, were the reinstatement of an advanced, German III course taught by Mr. Benjamin Band, and a fall trip to Lewiston to view French playwright Albert Camus' "Caligula" performed by le Treteau de Paris. Along a different line, students during April vacation completed a tour of Spain with Mr.

Alan Palais, and several French students were able to join a South Portland group traveling to France. Over Memorial Day weekend Miss Johnson led a cultural tour of Quebec.

A closer correlation between junior and senior high school text series and programs was accomplished, along with more homogenous groupings of French and Spanish students of similar background. An opportunity for continuing language study at UMP will be offered next year to advanced students.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT: Mr. Arthur Lekousi, Miss Theresa E. Johnson, department chairman; Mr. Armand R. Gouzie, Mr. Benjamin Band.

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT: Mr. Lyman S. Dunnell, Mr. Richard L. Whitmore, Mr. David P. Lent, Mr. Benjamin Chandler, Mr. David R. Wallace, department head; Mrs. Barbara R. Tisdale, Mrs. Mary Jane Amoroso, Mr. John Corcoran, Mr. Henry F. Deetjen, Mr. Peter E. Gribbin.

History To Include New Format

To achieve both a varied approach to history study and a flexible program, the P.H.S. History Department has proposed a new format for its curriculum. Not a new concept in the department, last year's innovative team-teaching was found favorable to students. Lack of staff, however, necessitated its extraction from this year's curricular. The department, though, suffered little from the loss of team-teaching, maintaining its high quality instruction.

Mr. David Wallace checks American Heritage assignments with Mrs. Barbara Connellan.

Under the direction of Mr. David Wallace, new head of the department, the new program will offer extensive seminars in United States and European histories and in other topical areas. All two-semester courses (including newly added European History) will be taught in two one-semester sessions. At mid-year, the students will change instructors, and, although the courses are not necessarily programmed chronologically, the student can easily correlate the two courses via periodic divisions. Under the new system, the students will be taught a broader scope of history and its relevance to social values. The program's feature will be an expanded variety of one-semester electives. To increase community awareness, history students attended lectures on drug abuse and a district court trial, promoting understanding of the judicial processes.

In addition to the necessary concepts of arithmetic, the mathematics department at P.H.S. offers the fundamentals of abstract thought through advanced courses such as calculus and computer programming. The two teletype hookups to Bowdoin's PDP-10 computer proved to be valuable assets in teaching BASIC and FORTRAN computer languages, a "sub-course" in all college algebra and geometry series programs. Under the chairmanship of Mr. Raymond W. Allen, who was instrumental in introducing computer concepts to the curriculum, the department offers intensive work in geometry, algebra, pre-calculus, calculus (for advanced placement), and computer programming. As the acknowledged basis of most philosophic and scientific thought, the instruction of mathematics and its sub-branches takes on paramount importance in our school program.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT: Mr. William G. Russell, Mr. Edson B. Hadlock, department head; Mr. Donald S. Parker, Mr. Gabriel Walker, Mr. John F. Corcoran.

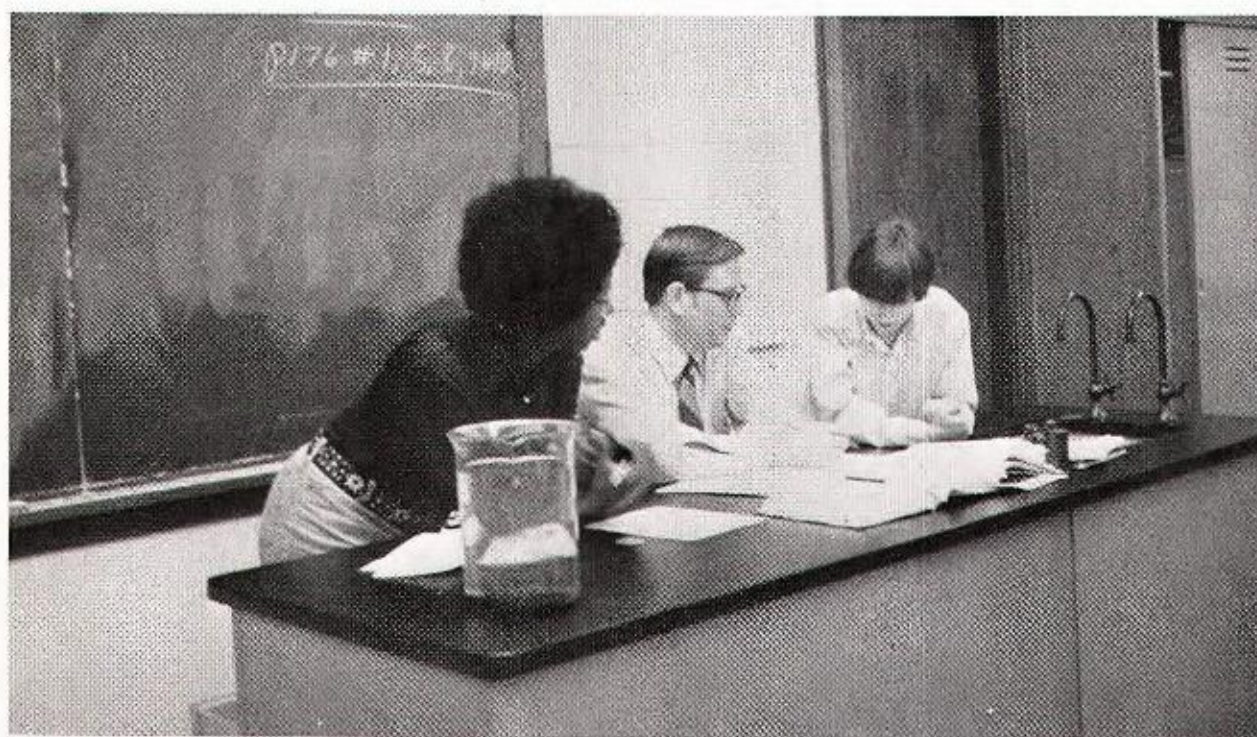

Man's quest for new technology in the decade of the 1970's has promised a growth in the field of scientific discoveries. Keeping pace with this trend is the P.H.S. Science Department.

During the past year the department offered eleven science courses. Versions of college and general biology, chemistry, and physics were taught. The department also maintained its waterfront course. The staff stimulated and encouraged students to pursue independent research.

For the future, the Science Department hopes to reinstate Advanced Biology, along with revamping the general biology course to include laboratory work; to include a one period physics course, to make the science curriculum more relevant to the non-college student, and to institute a nursing course for girls.

Mr. Donald Parker checks lab calculations with chemistry students Joan Davis and Theresa Charron.

Special Teachers Supplement Curriculum

Mr. Golden demonstrates the proper position of weights during gym class.

Although not members of a large department, the special teachers of Portland High offer exciting courses which broaden the interests and knowledge of each student.

Mr. Tranquillo leads his classes into every facet of the art world, helping them to gain practical experience in all phases of the fine arts. Mrs. Janice Brigham and Mr. Phillip Jones instruct their classes on contemporary health problems. This year the students were especially interested in ecology. Miss Barbara Wohlers and Miss Barbara Rockafellow keep Portland High girls physically fit with programs ranging from modern dance to basketball. Mr. Edward Bogdanovich and Mr. Thomas Golden, department head, teach boys' gym classes competitive sports. Librarians Mrs. Eleanor T. Bergen and Mrs. Barbara Connellan oversee and help students with their research and literary interests. Mr. Alexis Cote and Mr. Thomas Bucci direct the music program, choral and instrumental respectively.

Mr. Harlton Burr demonstrates proper use of printing machine to Russell Jipson and Cecil Mowatt.

New Facility Provides For Greater Vocational Studies

This year's addition of the newly renovated Portland Regional Vocational Center provided an enlarged facility to accommodate the growing scope of vocational-industrial courses offered through the P.H.S. curriculum. Classrooms and topical learning areas were built into the structure of the previous Cushman Building, which has been leased for four years with a one year option. Ultimately the vocational program is progressing toward an entirely new facility for an intensive learning center. In some cases, finishing and remodeling were the results of student work at the PRVTC in conjunction with the various classes. Schools within a 25 mile radius, notably Deering, Yarmouth, Cape Elizabeth, South Portland, and Falmouth, may send vocational students to PRVTC if the desired courses are not offered at the main school. Under the supervision of Director Martin W. Fehlau, the Vocational-Technical Center offers the following courses: Automotives, Building Construction, Business Education, Clothing-Textiles, Data Processing, Drafting, Electricity, Electronics, Graphic Arts, Health Occupations, and Machine Shop. Three cooperative part time training programs are offered in which students spend three hours per school day on the job supervised by both employer and coordinator — Distributive Education, Office Occupations, and Vocational-Industrial, covering subject areas from business and industry to office positions and trade situations.

Although emphasis is often placed on seniors, the undergraduates of Portland High are an integral part of our curriculum, activities, and sports life. By representing two-thirds of a three-class division, the underclassmen take on special significance as the predominant social facet and as the future leaders of the school and community.

Participation Yields Success

Secretary Janice Camp, vice-president Bob Richardson, Mr. William Russell, president Matt Hutchins, Mrs. Barbara Tisdale, and treasurer Mary-Ann Bourque go over the fundamentals of student government.

During their first introduction to high school life, industrious sophomores became outstanding participants in many Portland activities. Robert Laing and Richard Siteman chose debating which culminated with a tournament in Washington, D. C. Members also joined the ranks of Totem and the math team. With the aid of advisers, Mrs. Barbara Tisdale and Mr. William Russell, the sophomore reception, food sales, and the South Portland poster were highly successful.

Led by cheerleaders Rodene DeRice and Tricia Nixon, the spirited sophomores enlivened the rallies and supported their teams. The class was admirably represented in sports with several athletes worthy of mention, Chris Gilles and John Curran football; Walt Blowers, David Reed, and Neil Taliento, basketball. Jim Langella was a stand-out in track, while swimmer John Wescott won deserved praise. All acquired well-earned notoriety. Girls were equally enthusiastic in field hockey, basketball, swimming, and track.

With Simon and Garfunkel's "Scarborough Fair" for a theme, the class of 1972 began preparations leading to an unforgettable spring prom. A profitable candy sale highlighted the year as class secretary Laurie Marcisso and treasurer Cathy Flaherty organized and operated the project. Class president Peter Smaha and vice-president Jean Bennett organized the Junior Prom Committee, where, at the first meeting, a unique theme and setting were decided. Juniors also had many successful food sales including a "Portland Bulldog" booster campaign for the Thanksgiving Day Game.

Mr. David Lent, junior class adviser, stresses the importance of the Great Lakes system to history students.

Graduates Look To Higher Goals

With a look toward new goals in life after graduation, the class of 1971 brought success to the school, notably with a senior lounge which the Portland Park Department planned to convert to an afterschool drop-in center. With funds provided by the class of '70, furniture and room accessories were purchased and the room was decorated. Revenue from the coke and candy machines in the lounge went to the class treasury.

Included on the roster of senior projects were a sale of beer mugs engraved with the school seal, a spaghetti dinner prepared with the aid of the Italian American Club, and the traditional car washes and food sales. Graduation and the class play culminated a year of anticipation and planning for colleges, vocational and technical schools, marriage, and full time employment, events looked to after high school completion.

It's Nissen's

You're about to take a giant step forward into your future. We think we can make it the bright one you want it to be at New England Telephone. With a job that's every bit as big as your ambition. You see, we need people. With all kinds of talents. And especially, people who really want to get going with their future. And want to be rewarded with automatic raises. Your High School diploma is all the experience you need. If you want a job and a future that's tailored to your talent... along with unusually generous fringe benefits, stop in and see your guidance counselor. Ask when and where you can apply for an interview with the people who want to make your future as happy as you want it to be.
